RISK FACTORS

Investing in the notes involves a number of significant risks not associated with similar investments in a conventional fixed rate debt security. Accordingly, prospective investors should consult their financial and legal advisors as to the risks entailed by an investment in the notes and the suitability of the notes in light of their particular circumstances.

Market factors may influence whether we exercise our right to redeem the notes prior to their scheduled maturity.

It is more likely that we will redeem the notes prior to their Stated Maturity Date to the extent that the applicable Interest Rate represents an amount of interest in respect of the notes greater than that for instruments of a comparable maturity and credit rating trading in the market. If we redeem the notes prior to their Stated Maturity Date, you may be unable to invest in securities with similar risk and yield as the notes and replacement investments may be more expensive than your investment in the notes. Your ability to realize market value appreciation and any interest is limited by our right to redeem the notes prior to their scheduled maturity.

There may not be an active trading market in the notes and sales prior to maturity may result in losses.

There may be little or no secondary market for the notes. We do not intend to list the notes on any stock exchange or automated quotation system, and it is not possible to predict whether a secondary market will develop for the notes. Even if a secondary market for the notes develops, it may not provide significant liquidity or result in trading of notes at prices advantageous to you. Sales in the secondary market may result in significant losses. The Agent currently intends to act as market makers for the notes, but it is not required to do so, and may stop doing so at any time. We expect there will be little or no liquidity in the notes. The prices that may be offered in the secondary market for the notes will be discounted to reflect hedging and other costs and, among other things, changes of and volatility in interest rates in the market.

The market value of the notes may be influenced by unpredictable factors.

The market value of your notes may fluctuate between the date you purchase them and the Maturity Date. Several factors, many of which are beyond our control, will influence the market value of the notes. Factors that may influence the market value of the notes include:

- supply and demand for the notes, including inventory positions held by any market maker;
- economic, financial, political and regulatory or judicial events that affect financial markets generally; interest rates in the market generally;
- the time remaining to maturity;
- our right to redeem the notes; and
- our creditworthiness and credit ratings.

The inclusion of compensation and projected profits from hedging in the original issue price is likely to adversely affect secondary market prices.

Assuming no change in market conditions or any other relevant factors, the price, if any, at which we (or any of our affiliates or any market maker) are willing to purchase the notes in secondary market transactions will likely be lower, and may be materially lower, than the price at which we sold the notes to the Agent. In addition, any such prices may differ from values determined by pricing models used by us or any of our affiliates or any market maker as a result of dealer discounts, mark-ups or other transactions.

ERISA CONSIDERATIONS

The notes may not be purchased or held by any employee benefit plan or other plan or account that is subject to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended (“ERISA”) or Section 4975 of the Code (each, a “plan”), or by any entity whose underlying assets include “plan assets” by reason of any plan’s investment in the entity (a “plan asset entity”), unless in each case the purchaser or holder is eligible for exemptive relief from the prohibited transaction rules of ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code under a prohibited transaction class exemption issued by the Department of Labor or another applicable statutory or administrative exemption. Each purchaser or holder of the notes will be deemed to represent that either (1) it is not a plan or plan asset entity and is not purchasing the notes on behalf of or with plan assets or (2) with respect to the purchase and holding, it is eligible for relief under a prohibited transaction class exemption or other applicable statutory or administrative exemption from the prohibited transaction rules of ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code. The foregoing supplements the discussion under ERISA Considerations in the base prospectus dated July 13, 2007.

USE OF PROCEEDS

We intend to lend the net proceeds from the sale of the notes to our subsidiary AIG-FP or certain of its subsidiaries for use for general corporate purposes.

CERTAIN U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES

The U.S. Treasury Regulations that address the U.S. federal income tax treatment of debt instruments that provide an issuer with a call option provide that the issuer is deemed to exercise the option in a manner that minimizes the yield on the instrument. Therefore, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we will be deemed to exercise the call option on or before November 16, 2012, the date of the first increase in the interest rate. Accordingly, the instrument will not be treated as having been issued with original issue discount as a result of the increases in interest rates in November 2012 and November 2016, and interest payable on the notes will be “qualified stated interest.” See the sections entitled “United States Taxation — United States Holders — Payments of Interest” and “United States Taxation — United States Holders — Original Issue Discount — Notes Subject to Contingencies Including Optional Redemptions” in the prospectus supplement dated July 13, 2007.

If contrary to the assumption regarding exercise of the call option, the notes remain outstanding after November 16, 2012, or after November 16, 2017, the notes will be treated, solely for purposes of taking original issue discount into income, as if they were reissued for an amount equal to their issue price, and consequently for initial holders of the notes, interest payable on the notes should continue to be treated as “qualified stated interest.”

You should be aware that the assumption regarding call of the notes is applicable solely for purposes of determining the tax treatment of the notes, and we are under no obligation to call, and we are not making any promise or representation that we will call the notes prior to their Stated Maturity Date.
